

Postgraduate Students' Officer

The essentials

| | |
|--|---|
| Number of positions up for election | 1 |
| Can any student run for this position? | It is strongly advised that only postgraduate students (either taught or research) run for this role. |
| Is this position paid? | Yes- £28,118 pro-rata |
| Time commitment | 2 days per week during term-time (hours flexible around studies). |

What does the Postgraduate Students' Officer do?

The Postgraduate Students' Officer is the main representative of postgraduate students, both taught and research, within the Students' Union and LSE as a whole. The victorious candidate will become the fifth sabbatical officer at LSESU, responsible for leading the organisation along with the four full-time officers elected in March. The victorious candidate will also take up a senior position on the SU Executive Committee, as well as the Trustee Board.

The Postgraduate Students' Officer can represent students in a variety of ways, such as campaigning on issues that affect postgraduate students and working to ensure that their voices are heard at all levels of LSE and LSESU. The winning candidate will also have the chance to put on events for postgraduate students throughout the year, as well as ensuring everything LSESU does is accessible to postgrads.

You should nominate yourself if...

- You wish to be a champion for postgraduate students at LSE by representing their views.
- You want to make changes at LSE and LSESU to improve the postgraduate student experience during their time at both institutions.
- You would like a flexible job with good pay that you can fit around your studies.
- You want to develop leadership skills in an executive role, and improve your CV.

How to nominate yourself

- Go to www.lsesu.com/elections and fill out a nomination form.
- Nominations open at 10am on Monday 10th October and close at 5pm Monday 17th October. Nominations submitted after this point will not be accepted.
- Students can vote online between 10am on Wednesday 26th October and 7pm on Thursday 27th October.
- If you have any questions or if you would like more information about these roles please email Engagement Co-ordinator Frankie Quinn at F.Quinn@lse.ac.uk.